Drawing his way to Toon Town

by Susan Grober

Many parents living in Haliburton County appreciate the caring and understanding offered in our schools. And Cameron Leonard's parents are no exception.

When 11-year-old Cameron started French class earlier this year at Archie Stouffer Elementary School, he wasn't too impressed. "The first day we got it, I said to my mom, 'I hate French,'" says Cameron.

Learning French can be difficult for most students, but it was more of a struggle for Cameron because he has a learning disability. His mother, Louise, and special education teacher, Liz Bloomfield, discussed the matter, and arranged to take Cameron out of French class and into a field where he can really excel — art.

Now when his classmates are learning French, Cameron has been honing his sketching skills at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery. Cameron's knack for drawing is exceptional. He can copy pictures exactly, and has a keen eye for detail.

"He definitely has talent, and we felt that we should tap it, and explore it," says Bloomfield.

"Because of his learning disability, we didn't think it was valuable for him to take French," she says. "This is not to say any child who has a learning disability is going to get out of French." But for someone like Cameron, who has considerable talent in the arts, it's an ideal alternative.

Many children have learning disabilities, but the schools can't always set up special programs for them. "We don't have the money to set up programs, like drama, where other kids' talents lie, but we do the best we can," Bloomfield says.

Louise Leonard is thrilled that Cameron's teachers have taken such an interest in her son. The family originally came here from Stouffville, and she doesn't imagine her son would have received the same attention if he were going to school there.

But the person who benefits the most from the arrangement is Cameron himself. When asked if he felt happy when he learned he didn't have to take French, he offers a big grin. "Yeah, it's great," he says.

Cameron says he started drawing when he was four years old, and he has been encouraged to continue by family and friends. "People say, 'Keep up your work. Don't stop drawing.'"

Most every day, Cameron goes to the gallery, where Acting Administrator Irene Lubowitz gives him pictures to copy.

The school is appreciative of Lubowitz for her efforts in working with the student. "She's fabulous," says Bloomfield. "I have nothing but praise for her. She's been very supportive of involving the school at the gallery."

Cameron Leonard enjoys copying the work of Times cartoonist Gil Parcell, along with other artwork. The talented young artist spends time at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery each day, instead of taking French class.

Lubowitz has also invited other students to display their artwork at the gallery's Student Showcase. And it's Cameron who brings the work in, and sets up the displays.

The program has done a lot to boost Cameron's confidence in his abilities. When asked why he draws, his answer is straightforward and honest: "I'm good at it, and I like it a lot."

Cameron also draws at home, "mostly every day." It doesn't take him long to complete a picture. "At home, it takes me about half an hour to do a whole scene."

Lubowitz collects pictures she thinks Cameron would enjoy copying, and recently saved him a series of wildlife scenes.

"I like doing wildlife pictures," he says. "I draw deer, and moose. I like wolves the best. I like to draw them in the winter, with the full moon up, and them howling."

Cameron doesn't always copy pictures. He also uses his imagination to create different drawings. "I make up characters, either real-life or cartoon characters, like wrestlers, army men, and sometimes animals."

To draw these fantasy characters, Cameron often receives inspiration from other artists. "I look at another picture, and sometimes I use the same head and draw the body from a picture in my mind."

He has even created an original cartoon character, a big, burly guy named Fred. "I draw that one a lot," Cameron says of the character. "I draw him in different clothes. Or I've drawn him in a race car."

An artistic alternative to French

Student hones drawing skills

In each of these sketches, Fred has a special trademark — he always has a parrot on his shoulder. But where would you put the parrot if Fred is squeezed into a race car? "On top of his helmet," Cameron explains.

Cameron would love to use Fred in a cartoon, and he has actually come up with a variety of stories for the character. "I've thought up mystery stories, of a murder. And a story about these two kids who keep picking on another kid."

Fred is an example of how Cameron gets ideas for drawings from a number of sources. "I saw a cartoon that sort of looks like him, and I just thought of ways to make him a little bit different. I saw him on a t.v. show."

Developing a concept for a cartoon takes about as much time as actually drawing one. "I spend about a half an hour just thinking of a cartoon. And it takes me half an hour just to draw it, and get all the details."

This summer, Cameron has the opportunity to develop his skill by taking a drawing course taught by artist John Lennard (who is no relation).

In the course, children draw pictures related to stories

Lennard tells them. Cameron won a scholarship for the course through Sir Sandford Fleming College, which is offering the program.

Cameron took a similar art course through Sir Sandford last summer, and says he's really looking forward to going back.

By working on his strengths, Cameron will be able to build up an impressive portfolio of his artwork.

And with the continued support of his family, and from the community, Cameron will have the assurance he needs to allow his brilliance to flourish.

Significance of tourism often overlooked

May 11 to 17 is National Tourism Awareness Week!

Tourism contributes more to global and national economies than most people realize — indeed, it is a major contributor. Yet, because it is so woven into the fabric of the economy, its significance often goes unnoticed.

Globally, it is a $2.5 trillion industry. It employs more people than any single industrial sector. In most developed nations, it has become the third largest consumer household expenditure after food and housing. The tourism industry consists of many different businesses. They provide a wide selection of products and services. This diversity makes it a difficult industry to identify or quantify, which also accounts for its relative obscurity.

Tourism generated $26 billion in revenues for Canada in 1990. This is the equivalent of 4 percent of

from the office of Bill Scott, MP

Canada's GDP. The domestic market accounted for 71 percent and the international market 29 percent. Transportation accounted for 45 percent of this total, food and beverages 21 percent, accommodation 16 percent and recreation and entertainment 7 percent.

The tourism industry has a wide spread between the cost of its inputs and the prices it receives for its outputs, wider than many other industries. In 1990, the tourism industry alone contributed US$22 billion in value-added to the Canadian economy.

Tourism adds to Canada's export earnings. In 1991, foreign visitors spent over $7.7 billion in Canada. This makes the tourism industry the fourth largest earner of foreign exchange after motor vehicles, auto parts and communications and electronic equipment, ahead of wood pulp, newsprint, lumber and crude petroleum.

Tourism is an important part of the economy in all regions of Canada. As a percentage of Gross Provincial Product, it ranges from a high of 7.5 percent in Prince Edward Island to a low of 2.9 percent in Quebec, where it still ranked as the sixth largest industrial sector in the province. Revenues generated by the industry have important economic spinoffs. They include $4.1 billion of investment spending on tourism-related infrastructure across the country. Tourism also generated nearly $12 billion in revenues for the various levels of government in 1990.

The industry employs one in every 20 Canadian workers, or approximately 615,000 people. The accommodation, food services and transportation sectors dominate the tourism industry labour force. Together, they account for nearly 82 percent of the total. The largest concentration is the accommodation sector (45 percent). Some 73,000 jobs are in the management and supervisory categories. Women account for 48 percent of the total tourism labour force. They are disproportionately represented in the accommodation sector (59.3 percent), the food sector (58.7 percent) and in the transportation sector (30.7 percent).

The tourism industry plays a strategic role in the Canadian economy. As such, it is key to Canada's prosperity. It creates jobs at all skill and experience levels. It can drive development and growth in any region of the country.

Jobs, services and deficit main thrust of budget

I would like to take this opportunity to communicate to you the importance of the Budget that was presented in the Legislature by your New Democratic Party Government on Thursday, April 30.

This budget has achieved a balanced approach to meeting three important priorities: supporting jobs, maintaining public services, and controlling the deficit.

In supporting jobs, we are establishing the Jobs Ontario Training Fund - $1.1 billion over three years. This will provide jobs and training for long-term unemployed people, as well as assist them with child care to get back into the work place.

The Jobs Ontario Capital Fund - $2.3 billion over five years to support capital projects to prepare Ontario for the future. This will support 10,000 jobs this year alone.

Jobs Ontario Homes Fund will support 20,000 more non-profit housing units over the next three years. This will generate $2.1 billion for the hard pressed construction industry and will support 2,400 jobs this year.

Base Capital spending - $3.4 billion will be devoted to capital projects such as roads, sewers, public buildings etc. Again, this will support 67,000 jobs for 1992.

Lower tax rates on manufacturing, small business and resource industries will encourage investment.

In order to continue providing Ontario's services, we will be bringing costs under control by making social services and health care more efficient and reforming programs to better meet priorities. We will be maintaining our universal health care system by limiting the growth in health spending to just 2 percent, (compared with 11 percent a year for the past decade). Even with all these measures, 70 percent of the total Ontario budget goes to support health, education and social assistance.

Drainville Diary A report from Queen's Park

With Dennis Drainville, MPP

As well, we are reforming property and sales tax programs for seniors to direct more to those seniors with the lowest incomes.

We have been able to accomplish this while still controlling the deficit. Overall, the government has kept spending increases to 4.9 percent. That is the lowest growth in 39 years under any political party! The Ontario deficit will amount to $9.9 billion, down $1 billion from last year.

Of course some taxes have been raised. Most of the increase is directed at those most able to pay, including banks, life insurance companies and higher income individuals. If you make under $53,000 a year, you will not experience any personal income tax dollar increase over last year.

Budgets are never easy to put together, particularly in hard times, but I believe we have struck a balance between investing in jobs, services and holding down the deficit. You can order a copy of the budget by contacting the Ontario Budget Hotline at 1-800-263-7965.

NEW OWNERS OF BACKWOODS MARINA AT KENNISIS LAKE

Corsages made for Home volunteers

There was no reading over the weekend, but Sunday evening Chapel was conducted by Rev. John Burgess with Alice Jones playing the organ. We thank you both from our hearts.

Monday, Evelyn Coleman had bible study as usual, and arrangements were made to have one more before summer. We decided to start the meeting at 1:30 p.m. and finish at 2:00 p.m. If this is better we will continue it in the fall. Thanks to Evelyn.

The Hyland Crest Ladies Auxiliary was held at 2:00 p.m. Since it was volunteers week, small corsages were made by three or four residents to be given to all volunteers at Hyland Crest. Each member of the Auxiliary received one saying "Thank You".

In the evening Pat Bradburn and Fern Donnelly showed films, "Garden of the Great Spirit" and "Run Appaloosa Run". They were both very good, thanks Pat and Fern.

Tuesday's Chapel service was held by Louise Leonard. Thank you Louise, the residents appreciate you coming. In the afternoon we worked on crafts.

Wednesday afternoon we had an enjoyable bus trip to Carnarvon, West Guilford, Haliburton and back to Minden where we had ice cream cones at Kawartha Dairy before returning home. Thanks to Doris Robertson, Bonnie Fullen and Gregg

Sawyer.

Thursday, April 30, being the last Thursday in the month, was our birthday tea party. The ladies from the Minden Horticultural Society provided the lovely tea as well as a beautiful birthday cake. Dora Dawson was the only birthday resident able to attend. The Horticultural ladies who served were Lynn Hancock, Marian Ingram, Pat Bradburn, Irene Fuhr, Muriel Green, Marion Hill, Shirley Howe, Annie Kernohan and Beatrice and Edna Taylor. After lunch the ladies gathered around Doris and the piano and we spent a happy time singing old songs.

Thanks to all.

At present, we have a vacation resident, William Mitchell. We hope he likes his stay.

In the evening, Nancy and Troy Briggs were here to call bingo and we certainly thank them.

Student studying pioneer settlement

John MacDonald is a graduate student in the Department of Geography at York University, working on his Masters thesis titled Settlement and Land Alienation Along the Bobcaygeon Colonization Road: 1858-1881.

The Bobcaygeon road begins in the town of Bobcaygeon, north-west of Peterborough, and proceeds north to Kinmount and Minden, ending just north of Dorset.

Due to a significant increase in immigration in Upper and Lower Canada during the 1840s a great deal of land in southern Upper Canada (Ontario) was either occupied or held by speculators, by the mid 1850s. More land had to be found in order to accommodate the large number of settlers entering Upper Canada.

The Colonization Road program was thus initiated in 1853 by the Province of Canada; its primary goal was to bring a lot of people into an area that had not previously been opened or surveyed for settlement. The roads were also intended to provide greater access for the lumber companies to the forests; to supply the lumber shanties (camps) with a local food supply; and to provide the shanties with a work force for the winter months. The Bobcaygeon Road was surveyed in 1854, but the first settlers did not arrive until 1858.

This summer MacDonald will be in the Haliburton County area doing research for his thesis. He is interested in the initial settlement and

Artist wins volunteer award

Bill Scott, M.P., announced today that the Victoria-Haliburton winner in this year's Community Honours category of the Lescarbot Awards.

This year's volunteer award will be presented to Karl Illini, a distinguished artist and very active member of many cultural, artistic and historical groups in and around Victoria County. He has used his abilities to help raise funds for numerous voluntary organizations throughout the province. In short, he is a truly deserving recipient of this award.

The Lescarbot Awards are presented under the Communications Canada Volunteer and Benefactor Recognition Program and are awarded annually in Canadian, Regional and Community Honours categories.

The Community Honours award acknowledges one volunteer from each federal constituency who has made an outstanding contribution to local cultural expression for at least three years, and especially during the last year.

Research assistance requested subsequent progress of settlement, along the Bobcaygeon Road as well as the spread of settlement away from the road into the neighbouring townships, between 1858 and 1881. With this information he hopes to be able to trace the movement of the relatives of the first settlers on the road. This research should help to explain the pattern of settlement which developed around the road in the late 19th century.

The study area includes the towns of Bobcaygeon, Minden, Kinmount and Dorset, the Bobcaygeon Road and the neighbouring fourteen townships: Verulam and Harvey, Somerville and Galway, Lutterworth and Snowden, Anson, and Minden, Hindon and Stanhope, Ridout and Sherborne, Franklin and McClintock.

MacDonald would be very interested in hearing from, and/or speaking with, any readers who are familiar with the history of this area, and in examining any documents or photographs of the early farmsteads, as well as any maps which may have settlers' names and occupation dates on them. Any other information regarding the settlers of the Bobcaygeon road area would also be useful.

MacDonald will be in the Haliburton County area for the summer, and can be reached by phone most evenings, after May 14, at 1-705-448-3482. Letters should be addressed to:

John MacDonald
64 Felbrigg Avenue
Toronto, M5M 2M1

Please be sure to include a return address and a phone number so that he can get in touch with you. He will have a letter of introduction from his advisor at York University, Dr. John Warkentin, to verify that this information is required solely for academic purposes. Any help that you can provide would be greatly appreciated!

Little good news to report in the economy

by Brian Moore

As the summer months approach, businesses are gearing toward the seasonal rush. The governments have all brought in their budgets and several surprises were offered. We were pleased with the response received from the County of Haliburton and our Board of Directors has worked to reach an agreement with the County which both feel will only serve to promote the area as a tourist attraction.

Our long range plans can now be put into action with the personnel to implement the infrastructure. The federal agenda gave the business community little substantive hope or direction out of this crippling recession. The only positive sign for many was the continued decrease in the prime interest rate, which may create a significant differential on carrying charges for debt. The carrot thrown out for home buyers whereby money for a down payment could be withdrawn from RRSP's actually did little to stimulate the housing industry, as those who were in most need of housing generally do not have the savings to make an impact and those individuals with the income and the savings are leery of losing jobs.

Investors were cut off at the knees, as the capital gains exemption on real estate was eliminated which forced them to the sidelines. So the new initiatives only cancelled each other out. The provincial government resumed sitting with a new speech from the throne. The major items of concern to the business community at large were prominent pieces of the pronouncements. Your Chamber co-sponsored a seminar with Catherine Swift from the Canadian Federation of Independent Businesses as the guest speaker. The main topic was the proposed changes to the Labour Act and was attended by many interested residents. We feel that the position taken by the government will only continue to destroy the basic fabric of our provincial economy, as well as harm the efforts of the small independent business operator.

Anyone interested in learning more about the proposed changes should contact the Chamber offices.

As April was closing out, Treasurer Floyd Laughren tabled a rather interesting budget. Departing from the staunch party line of the NDP's left-wing philosophy, government seemed to be attempting to placate business interests, yet, at the same time, taxing the middle class.

All levels of government want to see our economy turn around, but the regressive taxation policies being used only deter consumer confidence. Deficit financing will eventually catch up with the taxpayer. Instead of finding creative new methods of raising funds or by eliminating the duplication of government services, the Canadian Taxpayer is once again hit with increased taxes and higher deficits. And the governments wonder why we grumble.

Dorset acid rain report

The following report on precipitation events was recorded at the Ministry of Environment acid rain testing station in Dorset and compiled by Environment Canada. This report covers the period of April 26 to May 2, 1992

April 29, 2 mm of rain fell with a pH level of 4.4 and the airpath was southern Ontario and southern Michigan.

May 1, 12 mm of mixed rain and snow fell with a pH level of 4.8. The airpath was southern Ontario and southern Michigan.

On May 2, 5 mm of rain fell with a pH level of 5.1 with the airpath from Lake Huron and northern Michigan.

Environmental damage to lakes and streams is usually observed in sensitive areas regularly receiving precipitation with pH less than 4.7. pH readings less than 4.0 are serious.

Mother's milk: still the best

Insulin-dependent diabetes mellitus (IDDM) attacks children and was invariably lethal until the discovery of insulin. While young diabetics today are able to survive far beyond their past life expectancies to lead meaningful, productive lives, they endure later complications ranging from heart disease to blindness.

Diabetes in juveniles is completely unknown in Western Samoa, but when Samoans leave their island and emigrate to New Zealand their children born in the new country develop the disease at the same frequency as the people already living there. Scientists investigating the cause were eventually able to pinpoint a surprising culprit - cow's milk!

The incidence of IDDM is relatively rare in Canada, about eight in every 100,000 births. That still adds about $1.5 billion in future health care costs annually. Lifetime medical costs of each IDDM case is more than $1.3 million. Scandinavian countries have an IDDM frequency that is three times higher than Canada. Finland, with a population of five million, has about 300 cases a year. A careful study of Finnish babies fed with mother's or cow's milk clearly indicated that IDDM was much more frequent in the latter group. The data suggests breast feeding for the first six months of a baby's life will significantly reduce the incidence of IDDM as well as allergies and other health problems associated with consumption of cow milk.

Scientists have corroborated this epidemiologic work using "animal models". The incidence of diabetes in rats prone to the disease is drastically reduced by removing cow milk supplement from their diets.

The probable reason for cow milk-induced IDDM is scientifically intriguing. The disease is a defect in the biological defence mechanisms that normally recognize and eliminate cells that are not our own. Scientists have found that part of the structure of a protein in cow milk closely resembles a human protein found on the surface of insulin-producing cells in the pancreas. So antibodies that are made by a cow milk-fed infant against the cow milk factor mistake the pancreas protein as their target. That begins a destructive process leading to diabetes.

Scientists speak enthusiastically of creating vaccines that will "immunize" an infant against forming antibodies to the milk factor and thereby remove the hazards of cow milk. It is also possible, but very expensive, to extract the factor from the milk by chemical procedures, but an alternative is to engineer cows genetically so they make milk free of the protein. Cow milk, after all, is an excellent food.

While the research and hypotheses about IDDM are intriguing, we must ask why fancy technological "solutions" are needed when it is so obvious that breast feeding is the easiest way to reduce the incidence of diabetes in children immediately!

The IDDM story recalls a newspaper headline on January 31: "Children raised on mother's milk have higher I.Q. scores". Through the entire evolutionary history of our species, mother's milk and breast feeding were a crucial part of parenting and child health. One has to ask why bottle feeding cow's milk or formula were developed as a substitute food for perfectly healthy infants in the first place. An immediate and obvious answer, of course, is money. Once a marketable product is conceived, there is little to prevent it from being sold. And in the case of baby formula with cow's milk, it has been aggressively sold in developing countries with devastating health and economic consequences.

But I believe there is another more powerful reason for abandoning breast feeding. It stems from a disconnection from our biological roots that is so profound we now seek to stamp out evidence of our animal nature. Alienated from the biological realm, we have come to believe that we are not like other animals and that we are superior to them by virtue of our intelligence and technological capacity to control the world around us. Every reminder that we are dependent on biological imperatives becomes a challenge to overcome. So women's breasts have been "elevated" to objects of beauty, to be moulded, pushed and injected to esthetic and sexual perfection. The biological function of manufacturing an incomparable life-giving food for infants has been relegated to a social role that is now regarded as a social embarrassment that should be done in private, or better yet, not at all. I'll expand this discussion next week.

New boating speed limits enacted

Legislation enacted late last year means that for the first time a blanket shoreline speed limit will be in effect on all of Ontario's lakes this year's boating season.

The shoreline speed limit of 10 km/h applies within 30 metres of any shore. The only exceptions include small rivers less than 100 metres wide, canals, buoyed channels or waters that already have a shoreline speed limit.

The speed limit does not apply to vessels towing water skiers provided the vessel is operated at right angles going away from, or coming into shore.

Boating Regulations are enforced by the local police detachments. Penalties for those caught speeding or violating other boating laws include fines of up to $500.00.

It is hoped that the new speed limit will increase boating safety in multiple use shoreline areas, and make swimming and various other activities safer.

Area boaters are also reminded that some area lakes already have speed limits in effect or restrictions on the type of watercraft allowed, i.e. motor size restrictions.

Information on these matters can be obtained from a current copy of the Boating Regulations.

These regulations are available at your local Ministry of Natural Resources Office.

Dinner supports conservation

Wetlands preservation is one of the most challenging problems that conservationists face as we approach the 21st Century. Wetlands habitat is being lost at an alarming rate through development for residential and agricultural purposes. The loss of habitat affects a wide variety of wildlife species, including mammals, birds, amphibians, reptiles and fish.

The Victoria County Conservation Dinner Committee is one local organization working in conjunction with the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters to preserve some of this precious resource within the County. The Committee has acquired a 36-acre parcel of the Emily Creek Watershed, with the goal of preserving and enhancing the area to maximize the potential for the wildlife it harbours.

Funds raised from previous and future dinners have been earmarked for this project, which is located along the west side of Emily Creek, north of Highway 36 in Verulam Township.

The 1992 version of the Victoria County Conservation Dinner and Auction is scheduled for Thursday, May 14 at the Moose Lodge in Lindsay. Attendance at the event will be limited to a maximum of 200 people.

The evening will feature a four-course dinner with a live auction, a silent auction and numerous raffles. Among the items on display will be artwork by internationally known and respected artists. The feature work of art for the evening is an original painting of Debi Fitzgerald of Young's Point, as well as an original Norman Knott "Geese on Mauve".

Tickets to the 1992 Dinner and Auction are $30 per person. For more information, or to reserve your tickets, contact Jack Lynn (324-3516), Paul Dowdall (324-2612) or Gary Carter (748-6324.)

The County of Haliburton proposes to consider a by-law at its meeting of May 20, 1992 at the County Offices, Newcastle Street, Minden, Ontario, for the following road reconstruction project altering the existing highway.

IN MEMORIAM

HUGHES: In loving memory of a beloved husband, father and grandfather Roy Hughes who passed away, May 17, 1991. I seem to see in the soft dim light,
A face I loved the best,
And think of him when the sun's last rays, Goes down in the far off west. I miss you no less as the time passes on,
Than I did on the day of your going,
For absence can never close the door of my heart,
And the lamp of my love is still glowing.
Your heart was the truest in all the world,
Your love the best to recall,
For no one on earth could take your place,
You are still the dearest of all
Ever remembered by wife Reita and family.
